

It's difficult to describe what life in North Korea is really like.

Imagine being told all your life that you live in one of the most powerful countries in the world. Imagine being conditioned by your school, by your family and by your friends to love and respect the leader of your country. Imagine seeing the portraits of these leaders everywhere you go - on buildings, in your classroom, at home - even on the train. Imagine not being allowed to criticise your leader, or only knowing what he wants you to know about the world outside.

Imagine if being caught with a Bible meant life in a prison camp.

North Korea is a land with no freedom of speech, no freedom of religion and very limited opportunities to hear the gospel.

Generations of Christians have prayed since the country was founded 70 years ago that the country would open and believers would be able to freely meet and worship God.

Will our generation keep praying?

How to pray

- For the leader, Kim Jong Un, that God might change his heart and restore freedom to this part of the world
- For continued access to the country through projects helping struggling North Koreans
- For believers to be able to meet in safety in secret house churches
- For those enduring persecution to be comforted and stand firm in their faith
